

Stop opiate overdose deaths

People who use opiates are most at risk when they:

- are not in treatment;
- have been injecting for years;
- have recently overdosed and come round;
- mix drugs especially alcohol, benzos and pregabalin;
- have been feeling depressed;
- have detoxed or left prison with low tolerance; and
- use alone.

Always call an ambulance if you think someone has overdosed

